Historical Note

In 1928, Charles Fisher built a home for young children and named the home for his wife, Sarah. This home in Farmington Hills, Michigan acted as an orphan asylum for children up to 6 years old, before they went to either St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum in Detroit for girls or St. Francis Home for Boys after a fire destroyed the old summer home. This home was originally a summer home for the House of Providence, before it withdrew from that arrangement in 1951 when the orphanages owned and operated by the Daughters of Charity in the Archdiocese of Detroit re-aligned. St. Vincent's Home officially merged with Sarah Fisher Home and the name changed to St. Vincent and Sarah Fisher Home for Children. In 1979, Marillac Hall merged into St. Vincent and Sarah Fisher Home, although the name stayed the same. The purpose of the home was to provide care, health, and fresh air outside of the city for infant children. Its mission evolved from an orphan asylum to one providing child, family, and adoption services until 2005, when the center moved its offices back to Detroit in a non-residential capacity focusing on education. It has been run by a lay board since the Daughters' withdrawal in 2005.
